Who am I? Where did I come from? What am I doing here?

I have been teaching for four years and am really excited to continue my teaching journey at THS. My favourite part of my job is helping students discover what they are passionate about. I believe that learning should be an adventure and that a great school feels like a community.

Outside of school, I like to read and go on trips to the theatre to watch musicals. I'm also kept busy with my puppy, Milo, and my house rabbit, Orbit.

I love bringing energy and creativity to the classroom. I can't wait to get to know all of the children and their families this year.

I will have an 'open door' and will always see you as soon as possible, considering my teaching commitments.

Why your children are important to me:

Every child comes to school with a completely different personality, background, and set of strengths. My job is to make sure our classroom is a space where they feel safe enough to be brave when trying new things and determined when something doesn't click straight away.

Your children matter to me because they aren't just names on a register, but individuals who deserve a teacher who treats them with respect and holds high expectations for what they can achieve. I am committed to helping them become independent and scholarly thinkers who support one another. I can't wait to see how much they grow and inspire us all this year!

Why Year 4 is amazing:

Year 4 is jam-packed with lots of exciting learning, linked to our Fields of Study. We learn about how the Vikings & Anglo-Saxons lived during 'Swords and Settlers' in term one. This is followed by learning about rivers, mountains and volcanoes in our 'River Deep, Mountain High' Field of Study. During our 'You'll Find it in a Museum' Field of Study we will learn about the Egyptian and Maya civilizations.

There will also be a number of trips and experiences that include immersing ourselves in the lives of the Anglo-Saxons at Ufton Court, a river walk at the Henley Museum and a special visit from the Red Queen who would

I look forward to seeing you soon!
